Dear Mr. Snow,

I am writing to you in regard to CALFED's process of finding a long term solution to California's water needs.

My primary concern is that CALFED is concentrating too much on building costly, potentially environmentally harmful projects such dams, reservoirs and canals rather than putting more emphasis on conservation and restoration. I would like to see more being done to create conservation programs and economic incentives to use water more efficiently.

Please look more into an environmentally responsible solution.

Sincerely,

Mary Ann Murray
