Dear Mr. Breitenbach,

My name is Emma. I read "The Sanfransisco cronicles" article about diving our water. I go to the Academy in Berkely and there I take a Marine Biology course. During taking this class has taught me alot about many different things having to do with water, such as: wetland restoration, kelp beds, the food chain, estuaries, and of course Californias fresh water problems. As I was reading this article I was facinated by CAL FED ideas. But, I do think we should do more to keep fresh water availa for any wildlife, marine, or land to to drink and live in. I think that farmers are hogging the water. They do need water to give to all of the food that they grow and we eat but they need to keep their water use down to a minimume. They are only thinking about themselves. We all have to think more about the wildlife that needs the water too. I hope you enjoyed my letter. I had fun writing it.

Sincerely,
Emma
