Dear Sir

For some years I have watched the struggle of the fish in our streams and rivers. Dams have not been planned adequatly. The goal of all the dam-building was to turn land into food production.

Some dams protect but 130 year flood plan!

As my grandchildren say "Get a life." Its a boon-doggle and does nothing at all for the quality of life in California. Small dams may not really be needed. Diners will do better properly banked. And up-keep kept up!

Also, stop, fine, set up photographic traps for the mean spirited persons who are too lazy to take care of our land and our rivers.

If 1/3 of the people leave California - FINE! I just hope it is the bunch that fails to be good neighbors, are directed by greed and really, who wants them around?
