Gentlemen:

As orchardists in Northern California, we use ground water from our orchard well for irrigation, and also water for household use from the home well. We are concerned that our water supply will be compromised by conjunctive use and transfers. There is not an abundance of water. Water transferred suggests that there is a surplus. We must have water for our own use and growth and not subsidize growth in other areas.

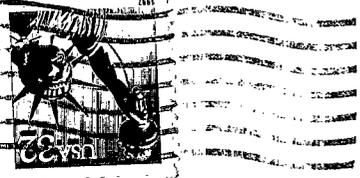

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Dorothy & Frank Vanous
