Lester Snow, Executive Director
CALFED Bay-Delta Program
1416 9th Street Suite 1155

Dear Mr. Snow:

I am convinced from reading Marc Reisner, and from classes on California's water supplies at our community college, that building more dams and canals are not the answer to restoring health to the Bay and Delta.

Water conservation by all, and especially large corporate farms which have often used water unwisely at the expense of taxpayers, is essential.

Both cities and farms need to conserve water and the riparian areas which keep it clean, and avoid erosion. We need sustainable ways to replenish the Bay and Delta.

Sincerely,

Carol Baier
