

Although there has been progress over the past five years to develop performance measures and indicators to assess the progress, performance and effectiveness of program actions, it is recognized that a more complete, robust and accessible set of indicators and performance measures is needed. A new effort has begun to make the framework more flexible and useful to program elements and agencies in their effort to develop and utilize indicators. This website has links to the draft revision to the framework, as well as links to historic and current documents related to indicators and performance measures. The framework documents are DRAFT, and we will soon be providing a detailed example of how the framework can be implemented for one of the program elements.

If you have any questions or comments on the draft framework or example, please contact:
